

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system for protecting a block in a destination 5 storage device including a data mover operable to move data from a source storage device to the block, and a controller coupled to the data mover, the controller operable to detect an application write request to the block and to stall the application write request while a data move 10 operation initiated by the data mover is terminated.